Mario Reyes, owner and Bill's head coach at 805 Kickboxing, said what makes him stand out is his maturity.

"He trusts us, he trusts the system and he learns from his lessons," Reyes said.

With Bill entering his senior year, could the possibility of pursuing a martial arts career be in his future? Universities in the United States do not offer scholarships for Muay Thai, but Thailand does.

"Maybe," Bill said. "I haven't really looked into it."

Bill doesn't know who he might be facing when he steps onto Thai soil. No matter who it is, he said his love for the sport and culture will continue to grow.

Sure, he's played other sports, like basketball, but Muay Thai is what he wants to do.

"I'm ready to get out there," Bill said. "Muay Thai taught me how to be confident in myself. You see your family in the stands

Adult teams compete in 2025 during the annual Ironman Hockey Tournament held in the Central Coast Sports Arena at the Santa Maria Fairpark.

Arena

From B1

The Central Coast Sports Arena is also the only indoor roller hockey rink in Santa Barbara County. While there is an outdoor roller hockey rink in Ventura, the next closest indoor roller hockey rinks are in Los Angeles and San Jose.

Tobin Flamm said he's taken to social media and started fundraisers, not to protest but to raise awareness of the business' financial problems.

"We have a lot of people that play hockey here, book birthday parties, so we really don't want to shut it down," Tobin Flamm said.

The popularity of hockey has increased in California with National Hockey League teams such as the San Jose Sharks and the Anaheim Ducks creating learn-to-skate programs with new indoor ice rinks, but Ventura said it is still a niche market.

"Only 0.53 percent of the entire population plays roller hockey," Ventura said. "Now, 5.0 percent of the population plays pickleball. If we can figure out a way to play pickleball or other sports in the facility to generate revenue, then that makes more sense."

Central Coast Sports Arena's lease is set to expire on Oct. 31 and both sides are still in discussions. The arena's website has also listed ways for the public to help, whether it be signing a petition or joining their team.

"We want to be here for the community, but rent increase is certainly reasonable at this point," Ventura said. "It has nothing to do with the business that is in the building or the owners. It's not personal. It's just dollars and cents."

"I think the best thing the community could do is go support Lori and go skating."

Morris will enter with two years of eligibility left as he looks to help the Wolves and second year head coach Ryan Orton improve on their 9-18 season last year.

"I chose Western Oregon because I felt that it would be the best fit for me in terms of development," Morris said. "I really like the coaching staff and trust their vision for success."

Drolette finished fourth on the Bulldogs with 6.4 points per game and was second on the team averaging 5.0 rebounds. She scored a career-high 15 points against Coast College back in January.

"Alverno's education system is very unique, focusing on hands-on learning and experience instead of a traditional grading system," Drolette said. "This aligns with my career and life goals."

Center

From B1

Recovery and wellness were central priorities throughout the design process. The Jennifer Bonner Fisher Memorial Wellness Plaza, which includes hydrotherapy amenities and an outdoor patio, provides student-athletes with valuable recovery resources that support both physical and mental well-being.

The Ledbetter Family Sports Medicine Suite offers comprehensive treatment and rehabilitation services, while the Overhelman Nutrition Hub reinforces the importance of fueling performance through convenient access to nutrition and recovery resources.

Collaboration and connection are woven throughout the building's design. The Couch Family Terrace creates a unique indoor-outdoor experience and complements an open-office environment that encourages interaction among coaches, staff and student-athletes.

Among the facility's signature spaces is the Richard and Kathleen Zacky Team Room. Seating up to 130 individuals, the technologically advanced venue features state-of-the-art audio, video and presentation capabilities that support team meetings, film review, recruiting presentations and special events. Additional position meeting rooms throughout the building further enhance opportunities for player development and coaching collaboration.

The center also pays tribute to the rich tradition of Mustang Football. The Gayle and Steve Mariucci Family Mustangs in the NFL display celebrates Cal Poly alumni who advanced to professional football and serves as inspiration for future generations of student-athletes. The Tollner Family Head Coach Suite honors the leadership and tradition that have shaped the program across decades.

Head Coach Tim Skipper emphasized the lasting impact the center will have on the program.

"This is a game-changing moment for our program," said Skipper. "Our student-athletes now have a home built specifically for them—a place where they can develop as players, students and leaders. The John Madden Football Center creates an atmosphere that reflects our culture, our aspirations and the standard we want to uphold every single day."

Baseball

From B1

The Indians' schedule consists of a mix of CCL and SCCL teams with most of the games on the road.

While the Blues can attract more than a 1,000 people to San Luis Obispo's Sinsheimer Park on a Friday night, Melena said the CCL teams won't travel to Santa Maria because of the Indians' lack of attendance.

"We're trying to get 100-150 people out here but, once we fix it (the field) up, we could hold up to 400 people," Melena said.

The Indians roster primarily consists of Central California college players, many of whom attended local high schools or junior colleges.

Lompoc High School alum Trevor Jure pitched 36 innings over the last two seasons for Allan Hancock. He joined the Indians because he wants to continue his baseball career at a four-year level.

"Summer baseball is great if you know what you are doing out here," Jure said. "It's a very good way for you to get looked at (by college programs) to continue your career."

"It's really nice that I don't have to go far and this team is really affordable. I can just come out here and play."

Santa Maria Indians pitcher Ulysses Kaul throws a pitch during a practice Wednesday at Elks Field in Santa Maria. The Indians will be a part of the California Collegiate League this season.
RYAN KUHN, STAFF

Atascadero infielder Jarom Damery is another Central California college player who wanted to join the team to improve his skill set. He played for Cuesta College during the school year. This will be his third season with the Indians.

"Obviously, you want to play good and realistic competition but the most important thing is just getting reps," said Damery, who already committed to NAIA Ottawa University in Surprise, Ariz. "I just want to improve my game."

Other players on the roster include former Cal Poly pitcher Ulysses Kaul, Valley Christian Academy alum Chase Barretto, Hancock pitcher Brady Birdsong and Righetti alum Riley Bassett. "There are some really good players out here," Melena said. "They are being asked to move from the bench to the field and they want to compete."

Melena knows that the Indians won't turn into a team like the Blues overnight. It might never happen, but for now, the players are taking advantage of every opportunity.

"These guys are playing against some of the best players in the state," Melena said. "Every year this team is getting better. We just want to help these guys reach the next level."

The Indians will have their home opener on Friday against the SCCL's East LA Dodgers with free hot dogs and an opportunity for kids to meet the players and run the bases. Games will happen on Friday nights and Saturday mornings, with nine games scheduled at Elks Field.

"I've been with this program for so long. It's cool to see the Indians going from playing smaller teams to these juggernauts like the Blues, Foresters and (Sonoma) Stompsers," Damery said. "It's a jump-in competition, for sure, but it's a great opportunity."
